Call: 2017 - Bar of England and Wales

2008 - Scottish Bar

Craig is a Scottish silk and a barrister in England. He has considerable experience in a full range of personal injury work.

Craig has appeared in the Supreme Court on a novel insurance point (Campbell v. Peter Gordon Joiners Ltd [2016] UKSC 38), he conducted a civil jury trial in the Court of Session without a leader (Bridges v. Alpha Insurance 2016 SLT 859) and has conducted numerous multi-week trials as sole counsel.

Craig is regularly instructed in high-value RTA claims involving fatalities or catastrophic and brain injury.

Craig has substantial experience in dealing with cross-border issues.

Craig has recently returned to civil practice after a 3-year appointment as Crown Counsel in Scotland. In that capacity, he prosecuted serious crime including murder, drugs trafficking and serious sexual offending.

Craig is available to accept instructions throughout the jurisdiction. He maintains a practice at Compass Chambers in Edinburgh.

In his spare time, Craig is a marathon swimmer.

Insurance

Craig regularly advises UK-wide insurers on indemnity issues arising from motor insurance policies.

He has acted for the Motor Insurer's Bureau in a number of cases:

- Fitzsimmons v. MIB 2020 GWD 23-360, a 2-week trial for the Greek equivalent concerning a quad bike accident which caused the claimant a brain injury.
- A claim concerning a police officer struck by an uninsured driver.
- A claim concerning an unregistered digger on a construction site.
